BIDS WANTED.

SEALED PROPOSALS WILL be received by the undersigned up to Thursday, May 28, 1891, at 12 m., for hauling stone from State Prison to Pavilion site. Not less than 30 perches to be delivered per day or enough to keep masons employed. Bids must be for price per perch, with the undersigned to be the contractor and paid for the stone in the wall, and further that no allowance will be made for openings to the person hauling the stone. By order of the Board of Ormsby Agricultural Association (District No. 1). W. C. NORVARE, Secretary.

For Girls Who Dance.

Edward Scott, in his "Dancing and Dancers," makes the following estimates of the distance actually waltzed over in an evening by a belle of the ballroom: In one waltz a dancer will go around a moderate size ballroom a circuit of eighty-six yards six times, even allowing for a rest, or 480 yards to each waltz, if in a straight line. But turning nearly all the time, say once in each yard of onward progress, the circumference of a circle being more than three times the diameter, the distance may be estimated three-quarters of a mile, or fourteen and a half miles to eighteen waltzes.

Bat and Ball.

Sunday was a fine day for the "lovers of chasing the sphere," and they took advantage of it by playing two games. The game at Overland was between the "Stars" and a "Scrub Nine." The game was very exciting, the score being 13 to 12, in favor of the latter. Will Bain was umpire.

Yesterday the "Riversides" of Empire, and the "Lillie Lyons" of this city played an excellent game, it resulting in a score of 58 to 47 in favor of the Carson kids.

THE FOOL EARNER.

How he Stabs the State and Himself.

A few days ago the editor of the APPEAL noticed a farmer in one of our local groceries, buying several hundred weight of flour.

"I want Pioneer flour from Sacramento," he said as he pulled out his wallet and laid down his gold.

"Did you ever try any Riverside flour made in Reno?" asked the writer.

"No, and I don't propose to," was the reply.

"Why not?"
"I've been using Pioneer flour nigh onto fifteen year and my old woman's got sort 'er used to it I guess."

"Isn't Riverside flour as cheap as Pioneer?"

"I s'pose so but I'm too old a bird to try any new flour."

"Isn't Riverside flour made of Nevada wheat?"

"I s'pose so and I guess Nevada wheat's as good as any, I know mine can't be beat on earth."

"Didn't I see you shipping several tons of wheat to the Riverside mills last fall?"

"Guess you did."

"Why didn't you ship it to Sacramento?"

"Cause I could make just a little more a bushel shippin' to Reno. I'm lookin' out for No. one, I am."

"Got your money for it, didn't you?"

"Yer betcher."

"And now you're sending the money to Sacramento, taking money from the Nevada mills to help build up the business of the California mills."

"Guess my business won't run many mills."

"Of course not, but take two or three thousand such old cranks as you, all taking money from a Nevada manufactory and sending it to California amounts to considerable."

"Gur is the Reno mill'll run all same."

"But it won't run all the same to you. The stockholders have got tired of paying out good money to farmers like you and getting no patronage in return and this fall when you want to sell your wheat, they will tell you to sell your wheat where you buy your flour."

"The devil you say. Ain't that a nice way to treat Nevada ranchers?"

"You fellows have inaugurated that style of doing business and they propose to give you a few tunings of your own game and see how you like it."

"Say storekeeper, gimme a sack of Riverside flour, I s'pose the old woman 'll take my head off when she sees the brand."

"Oh that's all right," said the storekeeper, "I've got some old Pioneer flour sacks here and we'll just empty the Riverside flour into the Pioneer sack and she won't know the difference."

"Haw! haw! haw! That'll be a good joke. Be one on her, won't it? But she'll be dead on when she bakes a batch of bread, you can't fool my old woman on flour. But we'll try it a whack anyhow."

"How'd she like that last flour I sent up?"

"Powerful well," she said the Pioneer mills was improving since they got their new machinery in."

"Liked it did she?"

"Yes, you bet."

"Well I played the same game on her then I'm playing now," said the store keeper with a grin, "That flour was Riverside flour in a Pioneer sack, just thought I'd try it to see how it worked."

"The h—l you say, well I'm blowed if that don't git me. She's been crackin' up that flour ever since she got it. Guess I'll take the Reno flour right along."

"Good idea, the money goes right down to Thompson & Beck and floats round back to you in the fall."

THE CAPITAL BAND.

A Grand Overture to be Rendered on Memorial Day at the Cemetery—The Firing by Troops—The Band.

At the opening of the ceremonies at the cemetery on Decoration Day, the Capital Band, will render a "descriptive overture" entitled the Battle of Gettysburg, first representing troops marching in the distance with drums, then music by the band, introducing national airs, followed by battle scenes and firing of salutes, after which the firing ceases and the music goes into an andante movement, and introducing the march Tuncbre as a quartette, intermingled by euphoneum solo, Home Sweet Home, with cornet obligato of parts of Yankee Doodle, Dixie's Hail Columbia and Marsailles Hymn followed by life and drums, and concluding with a grand final of national airs. The band will be assisted by a squad of the Carson Guard. Following is a list of members of the band with instrumentation: Prof. Al. Lindsay, Director; Arthur Raycraft, solo cornet; Chas. Day, 1st cornet; Wm. Kaiser, 2d cornet; altos Ed. Vonderhede and John Wright; Nate Rolf, trombone; E. F. Pierce, euphoneum; Will Day; tuba; Matt Gier and James O'Hare, drums.
